

(a) Track-end anchor: the common protocol

leaks for 67.9% of crossers

The window is offset from the end of the track, so nothing stops it overlapping the crossing.

(b) Crossing-point anchor: this work

leaks for 0.0% of windows

The window must end at least a second before the annotated crossing point, so leakage is impossible by construction.

